

The second day of Inatronics has come to an end, however, individuals interested in MultiClet products are still here and want to get more information. All of them are keen to know when finally they can receive key p1 MultiClet, as well as where and how they can purchase MultiClet boards and processors. Meanwhile MultiClet representatives continue building contacts with prospective partners and future clients.

Since the first day of the exhibition appeared to be too busy for all exhibitors, this day has become very important in terms of acquaintances with their colleges from other booths. MultiClet starts building contacts with electronic components distributors and now they already make plans for new future cooperations in Indonesia, Taiwan, Malaysia and China.

Moreover, high tech technology investors express their readiness to work with MultiClet. Since the company is relatively young innovative company and have only started promoting its products in larger worldwide scale, few nano investors assure MultiClet representatives already now that a great success is waiting the company, and that it's their mission to make such success a reality.
